Description of the Related Art An LSI (Large Scale Integration) element is fabricated by a wiring technique of using a film with a thickness of a few nanometers for a wiring interconnect or a wiring material. This technique is called a damascene technique. In the damascene technique, a hole is formed in an insulating film, and a wiring is formed by filling the hole. A wiring formed by this technique is also called a via. One or more holes are formed in a predetermined region in a wiring pattern, and then a wire film with a thickness of a few nanometers for a wiring interconnect is formed on the pattern. After that, the wire film is patterned. This technique is called a dual damascene technique.This invention relates to a roll-bonded glass film and a laminate of a glass film, metallic foil and plastic film. Resin films used for a solar cell, a liquid crystal display, a plasma display, a solar cell back sheet, a safety glass, a check, an ATM (Automated Teller Machine), a check printer and a handy camera, are required to have the function that they have an excellent chemical resistance. Additionally, the films are required to have a good film formability of giving a continuous film with no disturbance or trouble in the case that they are wound on a core. Furthermore, they are required to have an excellent barrier function and a stable handling performance. As for the solar cell, a metal ribbon of stainless steel or a ceramic ribbon is used in many cases as a core of the cell. A resin film such as a polyvinyl fluoride (PVF) or a polyvinylidene fluoride (PVDF) is used as a solar cell protective film or a cell cover. However, these cores and

The show is an installation of life-sized robots made of plywood, bicycles, and other recycled materials and set to live together inside of an old auditorium. The exhibit looks at the future of work, technology, and the future of humankind. On the outside, the SFAI is a boxy building looking more like a Disney World ride. On the inside, the robots take over the stage as bands play through out the exhibition. The work was made from art, skill, and courage. It was made with just a handful of hours of labor. The Robot Revolution: Robots Take Over the World exhibit is in full effect now through September 24.Predictors of outcome in breast cancer patients undergoing neo-adjuvant chemotherapy. There is a strong association between HER2 overexpression/amplification and survival in primary breast cancer, and its association with response to neo-adjuvant chemotherapy (NACT) has been well established. However, the data available regarding the role of estrogen receptor (ER) and progesterone receptor (PR) in NACT is limited and conflicting. Therefore, we prospectively evaluated the association between the status of ER and PR, and survival in patients with HER2-overexpressing/amplified breast cancer who received NACT. Seventy-eight patients with stages II/III breast cancer were followed for a median of 44 months (range, 13 to 97). All patients received a combination of docetaxel (taxotere) and carboplatin. Patients were treated with either the sequential or the concurrent modality according to their response. Patients with ER-/PR- tumors received anastrozole as second-line therapy in
