Icon Collector enables users to search, view, modify and extract any icons located in the system or any file. Once the scan is performed, Icon Collector will analyze the file or files on which an icon has been found, trying to detect all icons that have been stored in a particular file. The program uses a collection of binary data archives called "formats". In addition to the standard ICO, EXE, DLL, OCX and CPL formats, this archive supports all the popular programs that put an icon or a thumbnail on their files. Once the icon is found, it can be extracted and saved to a collection, as an ICO, EXE, DLL, OCX or CPL file. If an icon is found in a file for which there is no collection, you can create a new one. The program will then list all the collections on which the icon has been found. In order to view an icon, you can simply double-click it, or preview it on the right side of the screen. You can modify each icon by changing its background color, its opacity and its position on the screen. If you want, you can close the program. It can then be launched with the extracted icons. You can load these icons as a collection, modifying their names, as well as the position and order of each icon in the collection. You can also modify the following properties of the extracted icon: its size, the opacity of the icon, and the background color. The icons can be moved from one collection to another, or copied to the clipboard. Once all these icons have been modified, they can be saved in a single ICO, EXE, DLL, OCX or CPL format. In this way, the program allows you to automatically keep your collections. You can also view and modify these collections, in order to organize the icons that they contain. Each icon can be added to any collection, or sorted in a different way. Each collection can be named and the icons in each collection can be automatically sorted. You can also add new icons from the menus, or extract them from the active collection. You can create and organize collections from any folder on your computer, in order to categorize and compare the icons that are extracted from your files.
