The participation of gamma-aminobutyric acid, glycine, and L-glutamate in reproductive behavior was examined in rats. The 5,7-dihydroxytryptamine injection into the medial preoptic area produced a marked decrease in lordosis (L) in ovariectomized, estrogen-treated female rats. Bath application of L-glutamate induced L and lordosis quotient (LQ). Acetylcholine (ACh) and muscarine caused L and LQ, but this effect was blocked by atropine and scopolamine, respectively. The injections of L-glutamate into the medial preoptic area on the day of estrus induced L and LQ with a slight delay. Acetylcholine and muscarine also produced L and LQ but only when applied on the day of estrus. A significant increase in L and LQ was produced by the injection of L-glutamate into the medial preoptic area 7 days after a single estradiol injection. The injection of L-glutamate also caused L and LQ on day 1 after daily hormone injection. These results suggest that L-glutamate may participate in the induction of sexual behavior in female rats and that the activity of this peptide is influenced by estrogen.Monday, August 22, 2010 Birthday It's Baby Hazel's 6th birthday this week! She has grown so much! She's also started school 2 days a week, so I'm very busy trying to keep up with her, and keep her in clothes that match her hair color! She's so cute with her new glasses! She also has 9 teeth now!!! I'm not sure when it started, but it just goes through them so fast! Here are some pics of her 5th birthday....she was a major American Girl doll fan back then!I was recently looking at various cost- 09e8f5149f
