Shadow Walls

If you like tactical game, in which you have to think ahead, you won't be disappointed. It's very similar to tactics games that were popular in the eighties, but with many improvements and different elements. Gameplay: You can use both the left and right mouse buttons, as well as the keyboard, to move your troops. Depending on the situation, you have two units (Almighty, Light and Prayer) for different purposes. In battle, you get to move your units and cause damage to the enemy units (you have to attack with them) Train mode: You select one of your units, and you place new troops at various places so that you'll cover more space in less time, and then you can train it in order to have it be stronger. Modes: You have two modes (horde and 2v2 mode). You can play horde mode with others, or 2v2 mode with other people. The horde mode is a straight forward mode in which you need to destroy the enemy horde. You can use two different teams depending on the map. Art Direction: You have different enemies that have different aesthetics depending on the unit you choose. You can configure the UI depending on which UI you prefer. Sounds: It was really nice to listen to the sound of waves in the sea Storyline: The storyline is similar to "Medieval II" and "Total War" games, however, unlike these games, it doesn't have a storyline per se, but rather a world that you can create according to your needs. Who should play it: This game is more suitable for those who love tactical games. My final opinion: I recommend this game to those who want a little motivation to practice their strategies.

Thank you. Nice strategy game Reduced 'Achievements' Available In the recent updates there are a couple of achievements that are now unavailable. The first one, called 'Mortal Rivals' is related to the contact between the two armies during their battle, the other one, called 'The Game is Over' refers to the moment in which a player wins the game. How to Unlock The achievement "Mortal Rivals" is available in all the battles involving player versus player, that is, in the battlefields. The achievement "The Game is Over" is only available if the two armies are in direct contact and the player with the most points has won the game.

: 20 Years at Hard Rock Shadow Walls: 20 Years at Hard Rock
For a band as renowned as Shadow Walls, 20 years as a group is a long time. Not surprisingly, Hard Rock Cafe has been their longest engagement. The band dates back to Phil and Paulini Guadagnino's performance on the Rock Star's Roll of Fame show in 1996. Since then, they've garnered charting success and international acclaim. Hmm. Rounik (a.k.a. Stuart) Melnyk grew up in Woburn, MA. Phil Guadagnino's band, Kickinit Goldie McShmitt got her start in the New York/New Jersey area around the same time. Both were friends of mine and I've watched their careers progress. Phil: We knew that no one else wanted us. We just figured that being in a band that we liked to play was probably what it was going to take. The timing wasn't right so there was a lot of time. We thought that because we'd been on the charts with the time that it was just a matter of time before people were going to come crawling. But quite honestly, our success with Hard Rock is what the world didn't choose to see. We got seven months before our record hit #1 on the R&R charts. Hard Rock was the last to sign, but it might have been the best; they loved what they heard. Before we started working with them, my mother said, "That's right, son. You give them what they want, and you won't have any regrets." Our manager was from Europe, and he called me one night and said, "Phil, if your mother says that you're gonna give it to them, then you have to. It's their job to figure out how to market the product. And if your mother thinks you have the right thing in your hand, you have to bring it to them." I think this is what saved the band. Every label got into the industry after 1991. They wanted to pick winners and losers; they wanted something for nothing. But we had a #1 record, with every song that left our live set. If we'd been spoonfed to them, we probably would have been relegated to playing clubs. We wouldn't have had the exposure. And there
