This said, could we consider the orbit of Saturn to be within the orbit of the Earth's shadow, with an orbit co-inciding with Earth's shadow for 4 days out of every orbit (lets ignore the Earth-Sun aspect)? A: Answers to your question (Yes, Saturn comes within the orbit of Earth's shadow) From Wikipedia In 1750–1752, an occultation of Saturn was observed at four different places on the globe by various astronomers of the time. The shadow path of the planet from 1750 to 1752 was calculated by Laplace. The passage
