Force.Q: Java HTTP Server: Keep old user sessions I have a Java HTTP server (servlet) that I use for running some tests and it works fine and I am happy with it. Now I'm also looking for a way to keep the sessions active for my current user. There are multiple ways: Have a JS cookie with the session id and store that in client side Use an HTTP parameter and keep that in a DB Send a header with the session id in every POST request The first two are obviously user-dependent and I don't want a session id to become unknown to the server. The last one is not user dependent and also stores the data in a DB, which is again user-dependent, and it gets synchronized each time the user accesses the page, which is again a problem for me. Is there another approach that can be used to keep the users sessions active on the server? Maybe something with the HttpSession HttpSession.getSession()? A: Use HttpSession HttpSession session = request.getSession(); And store it in database. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an active matrix drive-type organic electroluminescent device capable of high-definition display, and to a method of manufacturing the same. 2. Description of the Related Art As an organic electroluminescent device having an organic luminescent layer interposed between a pair of electrodes (a transparent electrode and a cathode, hereinafter referred to as a light-emitting element), an organic electroluminescent device in which a transparent substrate having a transparent electrode is bonded to an active matrix substrate having a pixel array made of, e.g., am
